Randall – Please prepare a stip for our review. I’m on an airplane, so please reply all. Janna Fischer will respond on our behalf after we review.

It’s up to you on the new case – we obviously can’t control what you do on that front. It goes without saying that we reserve all rights in responding to the new complaint.

That sounds fair. Should we file our new case right now, so we can reference the new case number in our joint motion to dismiss?

Randall – At this point, Facebook cannot agree to your proposed stipulation. When we spoke earlier in the week, I understood you would send a proposal immediately, so that we would have time to discuss. Sending a proposal a few hours before your opposition is due leaves us no time to meaningfully consider your proposal.

To help resolve the issue efficiently (and very likely with the same result we will get from the Court) we are willing to file a joint motion to dismiss your allegations against Facebook Technology from the current case, which would moot our motion.

Orion,

Thanks again for working with us to resolve the amended complaint of Facebook post-AIA amicably. Attached is a Draft copy of the stipulation and a copy of the New Complaint we plan to file today once we here back from Facebook.

It may procedurally be cleaner for Facebook to withdraw its current motion to dismiss, rather than Blue Spike filing an opposition today.

Be well,
